

Option 1

A and B are used for judicial orders only. C, D and E are used for both administrative and judicial orders.

- A. your support order amount should be increased.
- B. your support order amount should be reduced.
- C. there is no proof of a substantial, permanent, or involuntary change in your circumstances.
- D. there is a change in circumstances, but the change is not permanent. A change in circumstances cannot be temporary. Normally, the change must be in effect for at least one year to modify a support order.
- E. there is a change in circumstances, but the change is voluntary. A change in circumstances must be something beyond your control to modify the order.

Option 2

A. (Selected if the order is judicial. Use with Option 1A or 1B)

The Child Support Program will ask its attorney to file a petition in circuit court based on its review. If filed, you and the other parent will receive notice of the action.

Note: The Child Support Program's authority to file a petition to change a support order is limited by Florida law. The Child Support Program may only seek to modify support for the parent who is ordered to pay if:

1. Either parent or the child is receiving public assistance; or
2. There is nonpayment and the Child Support Program is enforcing the order at the request of the parent or caregiver who is owed support.

B. (Selected if option 1C, 1D or 1E is selected)

The Child Support Program will not attempt to change the support order. If you believe the order should be changed, you may file a petition in circuit court. If you have questions about filing a petition, you should contact an attorney or the clerk of court for more information.

Option 3:

A. When a parent or caregiver requests review you requested the Child Support Program to begin a review of your support order. The Child Support Program finished the review and the results indicate

B. When the Program initiates the review without a request the Child Support Program is required to begin a review of your support order since you currently receive cash assistance for the child. The Child Support Program has finished the review and the results indicate
